

Saturday's Over

Dying to Know

verse1

sitting around awake, waiting for you to call, gone numb, watching this world go round. i've found a light, in feeling nothing. till i fall asleep thats when the pain comes you're satisfied living in a lie, broken down and catagorized, in a tide save me from myself tonight. justified the things i've done wrong, so help me sing this song...

pre-chorus1

you wanna come out with me tonight, your heart and in your minds know i'm sorry.

chorus1

live a life of luxury, cant sit still just let me be, why does this life trouble me, (leave me alone), when thursday comes will you rescu me, i wish i could make you see how much more you mean to me (when saturday's over) promises you never kept, have abandoned me, were never good enough you never found your way to me, alone at night on rainy days, dreams its all the same on saturdays...

verse2

touching the skin of your body's life bleeding within, this broken past a messed up memory, bathroom floor, innocence was stolen, lying around, looking for your destiny. could i trouble you, for a cigarette, and a light to catch my breath again. this symphony was our song but, dont you think you've done wrong,

pre-chorus2

i'm sorry, you came to me to push us away, so live inside me, lay beside me. and catch the decite in the corner of your eye and trip the light, catch me doing something with your love tonight. our friendships over so run away, my trust in you is gone, check these wrists bruised and beaten by this, your taste was on my lips....

chorus2

live a life of luxury, cant sit still just let me be, why does this life trouble me, (leave me alone), when thursday comes will you rescu me, i wish i could make you see how much more you mean to me (when saturday's over) promises you never kept, have abandoned me, were never good enough you never found your way to me, alone at night on rainy days, dreams its all the same on saturdays...

bridge

dripping in the fog that we've created, taking all this pain, you had to ruin something someday, i'm gonna ruin someone with your sins again, so wash this world away, cause i'm leaving, leaving on saturday...

Lyrics submitted by Tricia.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>