Light Up The Sky

It's an imaginary world
Masked by fake and empty words
And deep inside you know it hurts
To be disguised
Believing every single lie
Hiding what you feel inside
Living like you've already diedThis is our exemption
To being like the rest, we will be who we are
Don't let fear into your heart
Open up your eyes and see this world for what it is Never look back or give in
Don't give inTake back your life
It's just the start of the night
You hold the key to lock up misery
So lock it up, lock it up tightOh no you know
I don't care if my wings have been torn at the seams
I can fly on my own
There's an angel inside that for many have died there aloneTake all the fakes, be the name
That resonates through time and change their narcissistic waysThere's nothing left to take from me
I've given all I had
If all you ever do is try
You will perish or survive
The choice is yours to stay alive
Or be swallowed by the nightOh no you know
I don't care if my wings have been torn at the seams
I can fly on my own
There's an angel inside that for many have died there alone
And as I look to the sky
I just can't help but question why
Is there a good way to die
It all feels the same in the endUnderneath the sky
Your fate waits with cautious eyes
This is your moment, this is your life
Don't waste it
Just take itI will take what's rightfully mineThere's the X, sign your resignation
It's the path to your new destinationOh no you know
I don't care if my wings have been torn at the seams
I can fly on my own
There's an angel inside that for many have died there aloneAnd as I look to the sky

I just can't help but question why
Is there a good way to die
It all feels the same in the end
