

Bite Your Tongue

Tommy Stinson

You've got the answer for everything
That's wrong with everybody else
You've borrowed insights
Should have borrowed someone else's mouth And I, I have seen you fallin' through the door
When no one would even help you off the floor You dyed your hair you read Bukowski
Now and live by every word
You'd look the part
If not for the clothes you wear that you're wearing out And I heard from a man named Seth
That life, don't come to those who wait for death When you kiss and tell you leave a mark
Till someone else bites your tongue
Till someone else bites your tongue You've got your poets and now
Your singers singing show tunes in the car
You weren't so clever
In your flowered prints and your ghetto scars And I want to watch the sunset on the beach
Yeah, it's always been too far from my reach And you took a turn at Silver Lake
And now you're calling it your home
Too bad you can't grow up
You're growing down in your wedding gown And I swear to God I've seen this play before
Yeah, I smelt the popcorn on the floor When you kiss and tell you leave a mark
Till someone else bites your tongue
Till someone else bites your tongue
Till someone else bites your tongue
Till someone else bites your tongue

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>