lullaby

Breaking Pangaea

When we reached the car we found it wasn't there
She asked to hold my hand
I said I didn't care
Though it made her angryThat was the day we fell in love
It makes no difference today
And the money ran out so we headed home
And the house we lived in was the first she'd knownIt made her angry when she realized
But it makes no difference in her eyes
I want to tell the story but I can't believe
You find the things inside you to make you seeI have traveled oceans
I have swallowed tears
I have looked for one like you for years
It makes no difference now that you are hereIt makes no difference today
Would you marry me?
Would you say forever?
Take me away if it's still inside youIt makes no difference now that you are here
It makes no difference today
