Memory Of You

Course Of Nature

Walk alone tonight
I feel so cold inside
As I call out your name
For the last time
Another picture frame
Broken and thrown away
But the memory of you never fades

When your timing isn't right
You can feel it every time
From the words you couldn't say
To the stupid games we play
Do we dare to cross that line
Just to do it one more time
Is it worth the pain to get lost again
If we know that it's not right

Hung up the phone with you
And from that moment I knew
Things would never be the same
As they used to Remember when we used to lay
Together in our bed all day
All I want is what we had yesterday

When your timing isn't right
You can feel it every time
From the words you couldn't say
To the stupid games we play
Do we dare to cross that line
Just to do it one more time
Is it worth the pain to get lost again
When we know that it's not right

If I could change just one thing
I know what I'd do
All I took for granted
I'd make it up to you
These days I am living
With nothing left of you

Just broken hard and empty
And the memory of you

When your timing isn't right
You can feel it every time
From the words you couldn't say
To the stupid games we play
Do we dare to cross that line
Just to do it one more time
Is it worth the pain to get lost again
When we know that it's not right

Lyrics powered by lyrics.tancode.com written by WILKERSON, MARK MCFADDEN
Lyrics Â© Warner/Chappell Music, Inc.

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/