

Long Play

Dick Prall

You and me, we're meant to see
So much more than hole
In the door we were told
Had been broken
No push could open us up
To the outside

It's long enough to be
Buried up to me
In a house that's half my size
And the phonograph
Is skipping left to right
And the phonograph

Honesty like hanging trees
Don't get used anymore
Keep your shoes to the floor
And your throat clear
Don't wait around here
For someone
To try you on

It's long enough to be
Tangled up in means
Where the ends don't seem to tie
And the phonograph

It's long enough to be
Buried up to me
In a house that's half my size
And the phonograph
