Remember How We Started

Paul Weller

Remember how we started on a summer's night
Too drunk to care about what might?
You turned my head to kiss your lips
Time stood still as my heart skipped a beatAnd if I could I'd take your hand
And lead you off back to the past
I know a trail, a secret mile
Better to cry than never smileThe moonlight shining through your flowered curtains
I think we knew it was us for certain
And just the thing that we hoped for
Was building up into something moreOh, I've been searching, searching
Trying to find the words to say
Oh, I've been searching, searching
Trying to get back to the love we made yesterdayI think we'll find a way
Oh, I think we'll find a way
I think we'll find a wayRemember how we started on a summer's night
Too young to know about what might
Just as well as we might not
Of ever started on this course at allRemember how we started on a summer's night
Remember how we started
Remember how we started on a summer's night
Remember how we startedI think we'll find a way
Oh, I think we'll find a way
