clint

MÃ©andres

Some things will stay the same And i won't back away and run The shape of a power point won't change If you make me feel strange She's the hand at the end of the arm A place for everything and everything in its place And she's got a lot to say I get better, wait and see She thinks the world is falling apart She amazes me it's kinda hard to see in here But that's okay she just wants to be happy Drank coffee all night and now i can't sleep But there's nothing to see so who cares? I think i opened a secret file i let her look for a little while She amazes me She just wants to be happy a place for everything And now i'm waiting for the ambulance to arrive And everything in its place i had better wait and see I couldn't understand the instructions And the clock sounds like it's ticking slow And this book is in another language A language i don't know I used to tie double knots But now i couldn't be fucked things are getting stupider all the time She just wants to be happy A place for everything and everything in its place I had better wait and see she amazes me, you're confusing me You're confusing me

Lyrics provided by
https://damnlyrics.com/