Broken Down and Out

The Explosion

This is the dawning of the age of who knows best
And with each passing day I feel like I know less
They say somewhere in the world there's political unrest
But not as much as in my head
Seems like this day will never endToo much confusion causing breakdowns
In the relationship that means so much to you and me
There are the kids who will always break out
Out of the chains that keep them under lock and key
On their fucking kneesIs this the first day or the last day of your life
Is this the young idea that keeps you awake at night
Fifteen minutes of talking hard equals, fifteen minutes of pain
A lifetime with your closest friends is one never lived in vainAll this confusion won't cause a breakdown
In the relationship that means so much to you and me
We are the kids who will always break out
Out of the chains that keep us under lock and key
Get off your fucking knees

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/