Falling Down

Staind

What's happened to you? It's obvious you've changed
Something deep inside you is probably to blame
Must be lonely up there with your head up in the clouds
Even though you got there
What does your conscience tell you now?It's never the same on the way down
How does it feel when your feet finally hit the ground?
When all of your bridges aren't around
And the sand castles you built are falling downYou had us all sitting right there in your hands
But you had to fall because that's how this life is Got your fingers burned by burning candles at both ends
Now the table's turned and now your demons are you friendsIt's never the same on the way down
How does it feel when your feet finally hit the ground?
When all of your bridges aren't around
And the sand castles you built are falling downSo now I question what you're gonna do?
Now that everything's caught up with you
You believe the shit you say is true
But everybody's on to youLife remembers everything you do
Your karma has caught up with youIt's never the same on the way down
How does it feel when your feet finally hit the ground?
When all of your bridges have burned down
And the sand castles you built are falling down
Falling down
