

Two Birds Stoned at Once

Chiodos

So, here I am again, both of my eyes
So open wide and gleaming
Blank stares with races
Running only an inch behind Sit back and watch the pavement
Get closer as it aims for your face
As it aims for your face
So step back, let me take over
Step back, let me take over Can you hear the silhouettes
The slim and dark figures
Rising like giants out of the shadows
They're crawling out, they're crawling out of our skin Here I am again, we build ourselves
Where monsters used to hide
So step back, let me take over
So step back, let me take over And we're all whores
Some of us just get paid Oh, how we celebrate the mediocrity
My feelings crawl the walls
They crawl the walls and finally fall
They finally fall like empires and old loves Can you hear the silhouettes?
The slim and dark figures
Rising like giants out of the shadows
They're crawling out, they're crawling out of our skin Let me take over
Oh, how we celebrate the mediocrity
(Let me take over) Oh, how we celebrate the mediocrity
(Let me take over)
Oh, how we celebrate the mediocrity
(Let me take over)

Songwriters

Bradley Bell; Craigery Owens Published by

TEAM CHIODOS Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>