

A Best Friend In Me

Amy Rivard

I faced myself in the mirror
It was time to confront my fear
Aren't you tired of the pain from losing never gaining,
So wipe your face and lose those tears and get yourself in gear.If you've got to make it on your own
There's nothin wrong with bein alone
You've got strength inside, you don't need to hide
There's another door with better things in store for youLife itself holds many mysteries
And you can rewrite your own history
Pick up your pen, soon your heart will mend
When you take a stance, give a second glance
And let your heart be free
If you've got to make it on your own
There's nothin wrong with bein alone
You've got strength inside, you don't need to hide
There's another door with better things in store for youMy heart had been broken, shattered pieces of glass
Each crack retaining heartaches from the pastI can make it on my own
There's nothing wrong with bein alone
I've got strength inside, I don't need to hide
There's another door with better things in store for me
I can make it on my own
There's nothing wrong with bein alone
I've got strength inside, I don't need to hide
There's another door with better things in store for meI take a look in the mirror and now it's clear to see that
I've got a best friend, a friend in me.
