

So Long!

CoCo and The Butterfields

You saw what I am saying, that is,
Why this is playing on your mind
And you know, there's nothing I'd rather say to you
I'm just a little bit surprised. We've come so far, together and for the better
It's like our wetter weather's dry
It stares me in the face, it taps you on the shoulder
They'll hear us singing you and I. But goodbye, goodbye now
When you leave please try to see me somehow
And so long my friend
And I'll wait to say hello to you again.
We move on, like in a pantomime
Or in a summer sky so gold
And birds will always fly, whether or not it's golden
Just as long as they get home. I'm telling you, I would find any colour
Just to stop you going blind
And you told me, I would still love you brother
Even with so much left to hide. But if you fall, you're falling
And in your dreams you'll still hear me calling
And do you mind? Are you minding?
Everything that you have been hiding? Goodbye, goodbye now
When you leave please try to see me somehow
And so long my friend
And I'll wait to say hello to you again.
Goodbye, goodbye now
When you leave please try to see me somehow
And so long my friend
And I'll wait to say hello to you again.
Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>