

I Want To Hear It From You

Gordon Lightfoot

I want to hear it from you
I want to hear it from one who should know how it is
All the second-hand words seem to get in my way
I want to hear it from youI want to hear it again
I want to know if the soft scented touch of your lips
Must be taken away like a mother's first kiss
To the life that she givesI want to hear it from you
I've got a right to get it straight from you
To give my life a different point of view
To find a way to keep from losing youIf you don't know what to say
To understand is my life and the question is why
You should cry in the night while your eyes look away
Every time that I speak and there's nothing to say
