

(The Dancer) Under a Summer Sky

Evereve

And then, with a glistening beam of vivid light
Spring was gone and summer drew near
Pervaded our minds and our eyes were blinded with delight
For a short moment, we joined in the dance of life
And time disappeared, leaving us behind in our embrace
The air massive like lead
Too sultry to give, to give a sigh
Sheer unbearable, she lies on me
Your love to me feels so dry
The heat unable to move
Every attempt just a rude glide
The sweat runs on bare skin
Comes and goes like your love shines
The air massive like lead
Too sultry to give, to give a sigh
Sheer unbearable, she lies on me
Your love to me feels so dry
Under a summer sky of love
I see your soul above
Under a summer sky of love
Your name in my heart I'll carve
No sleep, a total repose
The warmth pervades, pervades my blood
No wind that breathes life
An existence without you would be like being blind
You're gone like the summer will leave
One day it will be over
The time slings yet slowly
Like your love from my shoulder
