

Smoke

Bedhead

From where I am I can smell the smoke They're burning something - I don't want to know Should I really sit here and wait and hope it blows the other wayI wish I could see and turn off my lungs when I run into poisoned air which may finally be everywhereI don't want to go to sleep
I don't even think I need it Keep every light turned on because it seems darker than ever All the murderous greed ignored by the ones with too many reasons for keeping things running If I blame them for anything it's nothing more than I blame on myself
