

Fade Away

The Cave Singers

i stand in front of you at the electric arcade that's where i buy blueberries so i can survive the day in the store it's so bright the isle so wide guaranteed but all the people are pushing and shoving and i wonder if they're ok with the sun on our backs we will never get cold
with a little light in our eyes it's alright to get old whatever your story might say and however it's told let it go let it go let it fade away then you ask me to, couldn't we both run away past the shopping malls the graveyards where the cuts spend their days but there's no wrong there's not right at least not tonight clemency sometimes a great notion emotion as we make our escape with the sun on our backs we will never get cold with a little light in our eyes it's alright to get old
we run through the fields and sets in the gold with the sun on our backs we will never get cold with a little light in our eyes it's alright to get old
