Off the Main Drag

Leif Vollebekk

Old gas station hasn't changed in decades Cashier checks the time around her put my things on the counter
Pull out my wallet like some pull down the shades
My only brother lent me his only car who knew I would drive it so farSometimes you move out of some obligations
It was gorgeous on the outside, inside it was just a machine it was the fastest thing I've ever seen
I first met Victoria at Victoria station
We'd always talked about going for a beer
She said, "It's strange now that you're here."We went back to her place, 57th we'd cross it She's as poor as me but she looks twice as good I told her that because it's something I would
She shrugged a little and she turned off the fauset
And later on as we were crawling into bed
I was thinking on something my father had said
He said, "You're better off, off of the main drag."
with my well-worn body wrenched like a rag
There I was, straight off the main drag
