

Bare

Matt Nathanson

In the light, in the daylight it's all wrong
To revel in your memory
The smell of your body
And the seconds that it kept me warm And I'm coming down, hitting ground
Breaking open, twisted around
The sweet sound of the lies you told
When you were broken They've gone away and I'm so sorry
'Cause you're wide awake
Planning parties for all the fools
Who've gone and left you bare And you said, in all your tragedy
You'd rather hide in mine
Oh so warm, so sad you said
I made your whole world shine And I'm coming down, hitting ground
Breaking open, twisted around
The sweet sound of the lies you told
When you were broken They've gone away and I'm so sorry
'Cause you're wide awake
Planning parties for all the fools
Who've gone and left you bare
They left you there
And now I'm gone with all the fools
Who left you bare, they left you there
Said so long dear And I'm coming down, hitting ground
Breaking open, twisted around
The sweet sound of the lies you told
When you were broken They've gone away and I'm so sorry
'Cause you're wide awake
Planning parties for all the fools
Who've gone and left you They've gone away and I'm so sorry
'Cause you're wide awake
Planning parties for all the fools
Who've gone and left you bare
