Promises

Megadeth

Two hearts that shouldn't talk to each other, become close
In a town much like a prison cell
People speak our names on the street in hushed tones
Of the stories they'd tell, if anyone would listen
You come from a town where, people don't bother saying hello
Unless somebody's born or dies
And I come from a place where they drag your hopes through the mud
Because their own dreams are all dying
And when we walk down the street
The wind sings our name in rebel songs
The sounds of the night should make us anxious
But it's much too late when the fear is gone
I will meet you in the next life, I promise you
Where we can be together, I promise you
I will wait till then in heaven, I promise you
I promise, I promise
There's so many fighting to get past the pearly gates
But nobody ever wants to die or get saved
Their intentions aren't that good and I can smell the asphalt
That's their personal road to hell being paved
And when we walk down the street
The wind sings our names in rebel songs
And it's much too late when the fear is gone
I will meet you in the next life, I promise you
Where we can be together, I promise you
I will wait till then in heaven, I promise you
I promise, I promise
I will meet you in the next life, I promise you
Where we can be together, I promise you
I will wait till then in heaven, I promise you
I promise, I promise
