

Mudblood

Lauren Fairweather

I'm not entrusted in hearing that you're sorry,
I don't care that you say it just slipped out.

Save your breath,

don't say you didn't mean it,
'cause I know that you meant it.

I know that you meant it.

And I don't even know what I ever saw in you,

none of my friends can understand

why I even talk to you,

So I'm done making excuses for everything you do.

Now I know

I'm just a mudblood to you.

I know you're aiming to be a death eater.
You just can't wait to join up with him can you?

If you call everyone of my birth a mudblood,

why should I be any different?

'Cause I'm not any different.

And I don't even know what I ever saw in you,

none of my friends can understand

why I even talk to you,

So I'm done making excuses for everything you do.

Now I know

I'm just...

We were just kids once and you told me it didn't matter.

You said that it didn't matter.

You said that it didn't matter.

We were best friends once,

but now you think it matters.

You think that I don't matter.

You think that I don't matter.

And I don't even know what I ever saw you
And now never again will I ever talk to you.

So we're done, this is what I get for standing up for you.

I thought

Our friendship meant something to you.
