

Grace

1997

Tell me, tell me why
The snow is white?
But I can't wash it all away You left last spring
You went to find something
You could see but could never speak West winds will wash you away
Love will lift you off the ground, don't be afraid Grace will fly you home again
My heart's crying for change
For the road to bend, to be home again
And grace is where I end and you begin
My love, my friend It's a beautiful night
My eyes have seen no light
The sunset was the last thing on my mind I feel your hands
You shake my face
And tell me it's okay to believe West winds will wash you away
Love will lift you off the ground, don't be afraid Grace will fly you home again
My heart's crying for change
For the road to bend, to be home again
And grace is where I end and you begin
My love, my friend Grace, it's all around you
The sky is white
I'm ready to be baptized You're all around me, yeah
All around me Yeah
(Yeah)
Yeah Grace will fly you home again
Where you're standing in the doorway
Singing songs to my old poetry Grace will fly you home again
My heart's crying for a change
For this pain to end, to be home again
And grace is where I end and you begin That's why I feel your heart and I know
That you can be my way
And I'll say my love

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>