

Song for the Fireflies

Josh Ritter

After all the lights had died
Out behind the palasades park
Fireflies remembered to do
Exactly what they were supposed to And memories were like coins that tumbled Somersaulting through the deep Down every well we threw them in Until they came to the top again And out like the sun
In your hair, in your hair Every month that ends its spin
Is picked up by the moon for keeping
Clean and safe from accidents
Sheltered from the elements
But June is like an echo
Of the sounds we never made
I swear they find me in my waking hours
Thirty days like poison flowers The wind in your hair
Like a sigh, like a sigh With intermittent rain and shine the sky re-started six or seven times
It's blue because it sees
All our infidelities
We both know that it's been so long
I'm not sure what to say so I hope
Fireflies remember to do exactly what it was they used to
