Dogs At the Table

Fences

I know this is kinda frightening,
But it would feel a little better if you'd put it in writing
I confess, I confess, I confess that I love you more than the dogs at the table
That I love you more than the dogs at the tableAnd in the night, you know they cry for you
And in the night, I know I know I knowI know this is kinda frightening,
When you crave up in the corner and you're shaking from the lightning
I confess, I confess, I confess that I love you more than the dogs at the table
That I love you more than the dogs at the tableAnd in the night, you know they cry for you
And in the night, I know I know I know
And in the night, you know they cry for you
And in the night, I know I know I knowYou never knew 'cause I never told you
Howling for you like a dog in the corner
You never knew 'cause I never told you
Howling for you like a dog in the cornerAnd in the night, you know they cry for you
And in the night, I know I know I know
And in the night, you know they cry for you
And in the night, I know I know I knowAnd in the night, you know they cry for you
And in the night, I know I know I know
And in the night, you know they cry for you
And in the night, I know I know I know
