Sweetness

Terence Trent D'Arby

Sing your magic spell
Into my ears
Place a blissful sigh
Into my tearsCradle my forgiveness
Judging that I'm half a man
If it were not for your sweetness
I would not know who I amTake your magic broom
And sweep my heart
Rescue Cupid's arrow
From broken heartsReaching for completeness
Digging deep into the sand
If it were not for your sweetness
I would not know who I amI find a shelter in your wings
I find my self-remembering
That I'm in a dreamBlow your moonlit trumpet
And sound my tone
Sing to me your silence
And call me homeI'm not full of answers
Though I pretend that I am
If it were not for your sweetness
I would not know who I am1998 Words and Music: Sananda
