

I Go And

Wild Strawberries

I've gone and done it again
Every time I think I'm more than myself
I go and I've gone and left you again
I know I said, "I'd only be an hour"
But I ran into a friend And I watch the sky my heart beating
Fearing for the fear relieving rain
When I see those eyes gently pleading
I wonder why I run away, I run away Mumbling with my old friend ambition
Something about the way that the wind
Has of blurring vision Lying in the shade of a cathedral
With my eyes closed, closed to the day
And the cry of the wounded minstrel And I watch the sky my heart beating
Fearing for the fear relieving rain
When I see those eyes gently pleading
I wonder why I run away, I run away I know I'll do it again
As long as the rain is a stone's throw
From the point of my pen And I watch the sky my heart beating
Fearing for the fear relieving rain
When I see those eyes gently pleading
I wonder why I run away, I run away I watch the sky my heart beating
Fearing for the fear relieving rain
When I see those eyes gently pleading
I wonder why I run away, I run away I run away, I run away

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>