The Night Before

The Inbetweens

I ring your bell
The buzzer opens the door
As I walk in, I only mind the floor
I raise my head and I see
A shadow on the wall
Vibrantly, reminding your last call
You are lying on the floor
Trying to remember
What happened the night before
Step by step
The sound of breaking glass
What happened here, well I can only guess
You seem asleep
As I try to put you on the bed
As I find traces of regret
You are lying on the floor
Trying to remember
What happened the night before
You, are you really that sure
That I'm the prince who'll wake you?
We can't rewind the movie called our life
And though I'm your hero
I'm not that sure, so unsure I'll save
You are lying on the floor
Trying to remember
You are lying on the floor
Trying to remember
What happened the night before
You, are you really that sure
That I'm the prince who'll wake you?
