Alone

Holly Williams

Maybe I give up too easy
Maybe I don't fight enough
Maybe my heart is afraid of falling in love
Maybe I'm too scared to find out
What it feels like to hurt
Maybe I worry, I'll land with my face in the dirt
But if I don't try, I won't know
These walls that surround me, they're strong and they're tall
I could slip and fall with no one to catch me at all
And end up alone
An honest heart's trying to love me
But I had nothing to give
I just wanted to see how much I could get
We're all guilty of wanting
The very thing we can't have
But the more that we take, the sooner, we'll crash
Oh, and if I don't try, I won't know
These walls that surround me, they're strong and they're tall
I could slip and fall with no one to catch me at all
And end up alone
But something's changing inside me
Something here, it wants to break free
Well, I thought love was a blind spot, I believe
I don't want to end up alone
So maybe I give up too easy
Maybe I don't fight enough
Maybe my heart is afraid of falling in love
