Moving Forward

Colony House

I found life and I found laughter.
In forgiveness, I found rest.
On the shoulders of redemption,
I found hope when hope was dead.
I could lose it in a moment,
so I dare not close my eyes.
I'll watch fear fall with the sunset
and see hope rise with the tide.
And when the pain is true, sometimes these troubles prove that I'm alive.My eyes are open,
my heart is beating,
my lungs are full,
and my body's breathing.
I'm moving forward.
I found my freedom.
I found the life that gave me reason to live.As this dusty road now settles
and I see what lay before,
every tear that held a broken dream
Is now shattered on the floor.
And now bursting forth in splendor are the blossoms of second tries because dreams that bear the mark of love are dreams that never die.Sometimes life can feel so unkind.
Sorrow won't define me
So just reminds my soul.
My soul
