

Up

Alkaline

You don't say much of anything
When questioned of your whereabouts
It's evident

It's right in front of me in black and white and red
And I don't believe in much of anything
I'm glad I have people I call friends

If it was up to me I'd never have to miss you
It's for the better and the bitter and I guess you know the best
You have every right to be
This appalled with me
Join the club

I signed up a long time ago and I know how you feel
And when you decked me
You left me knocked out on the floor
I came too bloodied up, but you weren't around
I picked my teeth off the ground like they'd been there before
