

World of Hurt

Beth Nielsen Chapman

Day one, God smiled
Gave us all the wisdom of a new born child
But by the time we take our first step
We've already begun to forget What the heart knows, the heart sees
We're just as much the forest as we are the trees
Every little seed trying to find
Where the light comes from It's a world of hurt, nothing works
It's a lonely little planet made of dust and dirt
Who'd ever think that in the midst of all this
Something as beautiful as love exists Baby, I hold you and you hold me
Heaven doesn't seem like such a mystery
In a world of hurt
You make me feel so good Day one of our love
Two heartbroken people scared to trust too much
Oh, but here it comes that feelin' again
That every lover swears will never end We thought we'd been there, done that
But when we've kissed
We knew we'd never been here
We've never done this All the walls comes tumblin' down
When you love someone And it's a world of hurt, nothing works
It's a lonely little planet made of dust and dirt
Who'd ever think that in the midst of all this
Something as beautiful as love exists Baby, I hold you and you hold me
Heaven doesn't seem like such a mystery
Darling, in a world of hurt
You make me feel so good You make me feel good And when I hold you and you hold me
Heaven doesn't seem like such a mystery
Darling, in a world of hurt
You make me feel so good Yeah, in a world of hurt
You make me feel so good
You make me feel so good
