

Gods & Nations

Jennifer Leonhardt

so now the revolution's started are you gonna make it there to the market square bring your slogans and lay your weapons down it's nothing personal i just hate to see you die so take your things now and write your fire across the sky i aint asking for nothin just a chance to see the light before the day dies feel the wind against my face as all the grace overtakes me did you know that you were going did you know it would be the last time you would see the hair fall across all that softness in my eyes come on let's build a fortress and overthrow the clan-trees and open all the gateways and make sure all the levees run free

so now the revolution's started set your things down in the front hallway and take a look around you listen to everything tell you goodbye whatever good were they to you come on come on lay your weapons down

---

Lyrics submitted by JS.