

Of All of the Angels

Nowherebound

Of All Of The Angels

Oh, to write out in verse, when the timeâ€™s they got worse,
And the bottoms of bottles filled my lonely eyes.
In the embrace of this cell, in the face of this hell,
Your light it did shine down and bid me to rise.

Of all of the angels who look down on me,
Who walk with me where I may roam.
What could you possibly see in a devil like me,
To make me feel safe and to make me a home?

Drink to fight off this curse but the whiskey did worse,
And the devil inside filled my heart with pride.
Then aloft on light wings, with soft spoken things,
You showed me a love that once was denied.

Whether times were bad, the good times be had,
When life throws up walls to break through,
And as the angels go, the devils I know,
I know I will always love you.

Whole once was torn, returned what was mourned.
Not one more tear did fall to salty the ground.
And my skies up above, bled blue from your love.
To your heart and mine, weâ€™ll always be bound.

Lyrics Submitted by Charles Everson Crowe

Lyrics provided by
<https://damnyrics.com/>