And It Rained All Night

Thom Yorke

And it rained all night and washed the filth away
Down New York air-conditioned drains
Oh, the click click clack of the heavy black trains
A million engines in neutralOh, the tick tock tick of a ticking time bomb
Fifty feet of concrete underground
One little leak becomes a lake
Says the tiny voice in my earpieceSo I give in to the rhythm, the click click clack
I'm too wasted to fight back
Oh, tick tack goes the pendulum
On the old grandfather clockI, I can see you
But I can never reach youAnd it rained all night and then all day
The drops were the size of your hands and face
The worms come out to see what's up
We pull the cars up from the riverIt's relentless, invisible, indefatigable
Indisputable, undeniable
So how come it looks so beautiful?
How come the moon falls from the sky?I can see you
But I can never reach you
I can see you
But I can never reach you
