

Airplane

Bethany Dillon

In an airplane I take the window seat
A thousand feet and all I know shrinks in minutes
And when the sky is gray I want to believe
That when the sun is hiding it still exists
In an airplane are kings and common men
At the window side by side, their view is now the same
Some relax and rest their eyes, some sit on the edge
As we all break through the clouds into the light of day
Mountain tops peak through an' this is where I see you
I've never seen a clearer blue an' this is where I see you
This is where I see you, yeah
Leave behind your busy life, all you have is who you are Space like this is hard to find so breathe it in Someone will say, "Where are you headed?"
And it might be the first time you ever thought about it
An' the mountain tops peak through, yeah an' this is where I see you
I've never seen a clearer blue an' this is where I see you
This is where I see you, hey
A baby's talkin' two rows behind me
The sun just set for the second time today
You seem to use the smallest things around me
To get me to this place
Mountain tops peak through an' this is where I see you
I've never seen a clearer blue an' this is where I see you
Oh, mountain tops peak through an' I can't hear but see you, yeah
I've never seen a clearer blue an' this is where I see you
This is where I see you
A baby's talkin' two rows behind me
The sun just set for the second time today
This is where I see you, this is where I see you
