Mind Over Matters Of The Heart

Restless Heart

Waking up with my head in a cloud watching the morning come
Another day of the week in a month, in a year, in a life that's come undone
I might as well quit trying to get you off my mind
I might as well quit hoping that this heart will heal in time

'Cause I can't burn a bridge that I'm still crossing
And I can't lose a past that I'm still lost in
I can tell myself it's over and I need a brand new start
But there's no such thing as mind over matters of the heart

Everyday there's another attempt to convince myself you're gone Every night there's a promise I make that tomorrow I'll move on But there's a voice inside me that calls your name out loud
A part of me still hopes to see your face in every crowd

'Cause I can't burn a bridge that I'm still crossing
And I can't lose a past that I'm still lost in
I can tell myself it's over and I need a brand new start
But there's no such thing as mind over matters of the heart

I can tell myself it's over and I need a brand new start
But there's no such thing as mind over matters of the heart

Lyrics powered by lyrics.tancode.com written by CROSBY, ROB / COTTON, GARY W.
Lyrics Â© Universal Music Publishing Group

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/