

New

Bethany Dillon

What is this sun that conquers mountains
Singing over what has been asleep?
What is it that softens all my doubting?
It's you Morning brings a hunger for new eyes
That have been covered by the hurt of yesterday
Who could create in me the vision of a little child?
It's you You take an ordinary day
And turn it into flowers like the month of May
Yes, you do You see all my pain
And cry over it for hours till I'm new again
Yes, you do When I have been a victim of familiarity
When my heart has fallen into sleep
Healing is the voice that awakens me
And it is you You take an ordinary day
And turn it into flowers like the month of May
Yes, you do You see all my pain
And cry over it for hours till I'm new again
Yes, you do You, you make me new
You make me new
Oh, you make me new You take an ordinary day
Turn it into, turn it into the month of May Oh, and you see all my pain
And cry over it for hours till I'm new again
New again, I'm new again You take an ordinary day
And turn it into flowers like the month of May
Yes, you do And you see all my pain
And cry over it for hours till I'm new again
Yes, you do
You make me new

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>