

As We Fall

Brimstone Coven

When the wind calls your name, and you know you just can't stay

When the light calls you away, take my hand and walk astray

I cannot promise afterlife divine

And I cannot promise you won't get left behind

But if you follow me, I can set you free

Free of oppression and the chains of time

As the sun shines through the trees, feel the coolest gentle breeze

See the last sight you will see, as we fall away

Stare so deep into the blackest eyes

Searching for truth but all you've found are lies

There was no guarantee, you chose to follow me

Cursed to see nothing but your own demise

When the wind calls your name, and you know you just can't stay

When the light calls you away, take my hand and walk astray

As the sun shines through the trees, feel the coolest gentle breeze

See the last sight you will see, as we fall, we fall away
