Broken Parable

Bear's Den

I feel the raise in my fingers,
I feel more just slip away,
I open my eyes,
And I fall behind.
So I run towards the stables
But the courts have bolted now
And I watch them fly,
Out into the night
Out into the night.I felt a shiver in my ribcage,
And I can feel the fear regrow.
No more hanging on,
But I can't let go.
I jump from sweat in the night love
But I swear you came to me
Just as you always would
May you always be.
Now I'm just a broken parable
Values I used to hold
Somewhere I lost it all
Babe I'm dying to be born again
Lost footsteps in the snow
Down the paths we used to roam
Don't say it was only love
Don't say I didn't love you loveNot a ripple in the water
Not a whisper in the wind
Awake in the evening
Hoping the sun will shine again
But my courts they have all gone now
And all that I could not contain
Though the seasons may change
Love is all that remains
Now I'm just a broken parable
Values I used to hold
Somewhere I lost it all
Babe I'm dying to be born again
Lost footsteps in the snow
Down the paths we used to roam
Don't say it was only love
Don't say I didn't love enoughNow I'm just a broken parable

Values I used to hold
Somewhere I lost it all
Babe I'm dying to be born again
Lost footsteps in the snow
Down the paths we used to roam
Don't say it was only love
Don't say I didn't love enoughDid I not love enough?
Did I not love enough?
Did I not love enough?
I'm dying to be born again.Did I not love enough?
Did I not love enough?
Did I not love enough?
I'm dying to be born again.
