Tearing Me Apart

Ellen Miles

Tiny things illuminate us
Makeup on the window sill
Fingers tracing tracks on my face
Uncover the cracks in meYou said, "That's where the light shines through us"
Kiss my mouth, I'll believeYou're tearing me apart
It's beautiful, it's beautiful
Beautiful at the startYou're tearing me apart
It's beautiful, it's beautiful
Beautiful at the startWho would have known my heart is beating?
Who would have known my heart is beating?I was dreaming, we were older
You were laughing and I woke up
Covered in one sleeping breathThe night before I left New York
I have to catch a plane to Jackknife
But I'll be back soonYou're tearing me apart
It's beautiful, it's beautiful
Beautiful at the startYou're tearing me apart
It's beautiful, it's beautiful
Beautiful at the startWho would have known my heart is beating?
Who would have known my heart is beating?You're tearing me apart
It's beautiful, it's beautiful
Beautiful at the startYou're tearing me apart
It's beautiful it's beautiful
Beautiful at the start
