The Impossible

Evergrey

I cross the dark side of the moon.
I'll do the same with the rings of saturn.
I'll stay away through the marsh of winter.
But in the end what does it matter?
And I'll look to the sky, for the suns to justify
Or offer reasons why, we can't be 'you and I'.
I've been watching from the outside.
Dying to be on the inside.
It's colder and it's freezing, while you're asking the impossible.
Because it's impossible, to be this alone.
To be this alone.
I cross the dark side of the moon.
And cross my heart and hope for this madness.
To end very soon.
Before I drown in the see of sadness.
I've been watching from the outside.
Dying to be on the inside.
and i've been watching from the outside, when I'm laying to be on the inside.
And you're asking the impossible.
