Kate Tempest

Hold on to your pride
All the roads are down there's nowhere left where we can hide or run to All the plans are made painted out in the gray of the pavement
But I'm a hurricane there's nowhere I will go because I'm told no no Give me one more kiss 'fore i jump this train wherever it's going
One more dance here with the moonbeams and the flickering neon
When the lights around the highest buildings make reflexions
It reminds me I swear that's the shape of your smile
ref

Hold on to your pride you won't be forgotten tonight
I'll be alright It's not the world I am leaving but a rhyme with no meaning
And you cannot hold me now I know where I belong
I was counted out the very first steps I made
But I won't satisfy those dark and lowering expectations
Goodbye, look at the stars tonight

Hold on to your pride the streets will be empty tonight
You don't need to cry like a shadow I'll be by your side
But you cannot hold me now I know where I belong
I won't fall to any lame and shallow explanation
goodbye look at the stars tonight
