Unraveling

Sevendust

I need an answer, some way to understand
This feels so convincing and a little out of hand
So tell me one thing who gave you all those scars?
That took away your innocence
You push away with everything you are, I can't take this anymore
I'm tired of breaking, I'm tired of faking
I want the world to see you sold a broken dream
You were not there for me, I was unraveling
All that we never knew that could've been me and you
But you took everything, now it's just you unraveling
So here we are now, break what's already broken
I guess I could've seen this coming if you'd been around
Let's tear the past wide open, I can't take this anymore
I'm tired of breaking, I'm tired of faking
I want the world to see you sold a broken dream
You were not there for me, I was unraveling
All that we never knew that could've been me and you
But you took everything, now it's just you unraveling
What have we become? The hopeless dramatic
I think it's over
We hope to find the truth still breathing
Can we survive the low?
I want the world to see you sold a broken dream
You were not there for me, I was unraveling
I want the world to see you sold a broken dream
You were not there for me, I was unraveling
All that we never knew that could've been me and you
But you took everything, now it's just you unraveling
Unraveling

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/