Bird Has Flown

Deep Purple

Oh, the beggar on his cornerstone Catches pity in his wrinkled hand But the lover whose bird has flown Catches nothing only grains of sandAll the children in the distant house They have feelings only children know But the lover whose bird has flown Catches nothing only flakes of snowThe sensation is not new to you It's something we all have known You get it, it goes right through you Yes, it's something we all have knownAnd the bird, it has flown To a place on it's own Somewhere all aloneNow the hermit in his lonely cave Has himself to keep him company But the lover whose bird has flown He has heartaches same as you and meThe sensation's not new to you It's something we all have known You get it, it goes right through you Yes, it's something we all have known And the bird it has flownNow the hermit in his lonely cave Has himself to keep him company But the lover whose bird has flown He has heartaches same as you and me
