Different Stars

Trespassers William

So you'd sing a lullaby to get me to sleep
So it's no surprise my eyes are never heavy
For I've not seen you in the flesh for so long
But I'm not sure we would know each other at all, all, allOh the weight it must be light wherever you are
And I know you don't think twice wherever you are Oh the weight it must be light wherever you are
And I know you don't think twice wherever you areSo I will hum alone, too far from you
All that I say now is nothing to you
We will lie under different stars
I am where I am and you're where you are You're where you areOh the weight it must be light wherever you are
And I know you don' t think twice wherever you are
And I'd ask if you're all right wherever you are
And do you think of me, you might, wherever you are
