

You Don't Know

The 13th Floor Elevators

Hey! There you are again,
Standing down below me,
I honestly believe that there is something,
You could show me
While deep within your mind is what,
You give to even know me
While you don't know,
You don't know,
You don't know how young you are Her eyes are filled with coral snakes
And liquid plastic castles,
Her daily life revolves,
Around a thousand petty hassles,
Twenty dogs and windowpanes,
And papered silver tassels You don't know
You don't know
You don't know how young you are If I knew what's right for you,
You would not be without it
And if I knew the truth for you,
I'd surely stand and shout it,
There's better things that you could be,
There is no doubt about it And you don't know,
You don't know
You don't know how young you are You don't know, You don't know
How young you are now
You don't know
How young you are now You don't know
How young you are now
You don't know
How young you are now
You don't know
How young you are now
You don't know
How young you are now
You don't know
How young you are now You don't know
You don't know
You don't know
