

Hain't It Funny?

K.d. Lang

We made love last night, wasn't good, wasn't bad
Intimate strangers made me kinda sad, period
Now when I woke up this morning, coffee wasn't on
It slowly dawned on me that my baby is gone
My baby's gone
Guess I shoudn't be so shocked, I guess I shouldn't be so surprised
Guess I sorta noticed sadness in your eyes
All this time together and I still feel so alone
Two of us together couldn't make this house a home
My baby's gone, my baby's gone, oh, so long
Maybe I'm a little bit relieved, maybe even a little bit glad
Now that you're gone, maybe I won't feel so sad
So I'm packing your things, leaving them outside
Neighbours can talk themselves up into a storm, I'll survive
My baby's gone, my baby's gone, oh, so long
Did you forget something my love? I see you're back outside
Looking at your suitcases, looking, oh, so surprised
Hain't it funny, one of life's little jokes
Thought you'd gone for good, but you'd only gone for smokes

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>