

Should I

Kris Allen

I've been cold, I'm fooled before
But this time she might be right
Every tear that I've caught
Made an ocean at all this time
She is the one that I can't lose
God can't tell me what should I do Should I tell her that I'm sorry
Or should I shut my mouth instead
Should I go and by her flowers in her favorite shade of red
Should I wait until the mornin' and maybe she forgives
Should I just accept, she won't love me like she did
She won't love me like she did Promise turned a thousand times
That I would not make her cry
But right now, all those words
Are nothing but mouth full of lies Should I tell her that I'm sorry
Or should I shut my mouth instead
Should I go and by her flowers in her favorite shade of red
Should I wait until the mornin' and maybe she forgives
Should I just accept
She won't love me like she did Love spin a risk to my life
Tryna make this thing right
Standing here, it's clear out, only God tonight Should I tell her that I'm sorry
Or should I shut my mouth instead
And it's stupid to by her flowers 'cause they're always in the bet
So should I get down on my needs and pray that she forgives
Should I just accept, should I just accept, she won't love me like she did
She won't love me like she did, she won't love me like she did
