Manic

Manic

ManicShe breathes in, she breaths out

She wakes up and lays down

She can hardly speak and so she screamsI won't give again

'Cause she takes it so oftenNothing I say will wash it away

I'm standing in the pouring rain

You say it won't happen again

You're manic, manicThere's a chemical in your brain

It's pouring sunshine and in rage

You can never know what to expect

You're manic, manicShe loves you and hates you

You break down, she feels good

She will bleed from insecurityWhen will she heal from this?

I love her stillNothing I say will wash it away

I'm standing in the pouring rain

You say it won't happen again

You're manic, manicThere's a chemical in your brain

It's pouring sunshine and in rage

You can never know what to expect

You're manic, manicManic

Manic

ManicShe's got everything, you want

She's every little thing you're not, yeahNothing I say will wash it away

I'm standing in the pouring rain

You say it won't happen again

You're manic, manicThere's a chemical in your brain

It's pouring sunshine and in rage

You can never know what to expect

You're manic, manicNothing I say will wash it away

I'm standing in the pouring rain

You say it won't happen again

You're manic, manicThere's a chemical in your brain

It's pouring sunshine and in rage

You can never know what to expect

You're manic, manicManic
