Seasick

Riley Pearce

Caught in a dangerous tide
Where the storm and the sailor collide
Searching for treasure he's to find
But there's something more than a difficult storm on my mind

And it's turning my skin white
And at times I forget where my heart lies

So you steer your ship to the shore
Said you found holes in the walls
Do you get seasick?
Is there someone you miss?
Add another excuse to your list

Calm from our neck to our toes
But the rest of us wants to go home
Abandon the silver and gold
We forget to collect because this doubt has been taking its toll

And it's turning my skin white
And at times I forget where my heart lies

So you steer your ship to the shore
Said you found holes in the walls
Do you get seasick?
Is there someone you miss?
Add another excuse to your list
Oh do you get seasick?
Add another excuse to your list

Oh and I shout it, "Iceberg"
Oh and I shout it, "Iceberg"

So I steer the ship to the shore
I told you there were holes in the walls
You know I get seasick
Because there's someone I miss
Just another excuse from the list
Said I get seasick
And it's just another excuse from the list

Maybe you're just seasick
Or it's just another excuse to dismiss
